IN MEMORIAM

Sean Taylor

1983 - 2007

Even the atmosphere, with the rain and the mist, suggested something mysterious on the afternoon of Week 17 last year at FedExField.

The final margin, 21 points, took it even further.

When the Redskins outplayed Dallas 27-6 in front of a record crowd at FedExField, they set themselves up for a Wild Card playoff matchup in Seattle.

More than that, Washington won by a magic number—that of slain teammate Sean Taylor.

It was hard to miss.

For weeks, the Redskins had been playing inspired football in memory of Taylor, who was murdered in his own South Florida home in late November.

In their most emotional game of 2007, against their fiercest rivals, the Redskins came up winners in a game that called to mind Taylor's very jersey number, No. 21.

That situational coincidence was not lost on Redskins players.

"You know, it's strange," Clinton Portis began. "The strangest things have been happening to us all season—especially to finish the season winning by 21 points against Dallas."

Portis continued: "It's strange because they passed out a picture that Sean signed for a fan earlier, during training camp, that said, 'We Want Dallas.' That's what our fans wanted."

After Portis scored his second touchdown of the game, he lifted his shirt to reveal a tee-shirt devoted to Taylor. It had three images of his slain friend, with the words "Sean Taylor: In Memory of a Fallen Redskin, 1983-2007."

Sean Taylor departed this world last November but his presence is still with the Redskins.

Said Portis: "I'm never going to forget about him. Any time I do something good, there's always somebody there with me, and that's 'Sean T.' I just want to make sure his memory stays alive."

On Dec. 4, one day after the entire Redskins organization traveled to Miami for Taylor's heart-breaking funeral, the Redskins held a team meeting that, according to London Fletcher, was the start of the Redskins' playoff run.

As Santana Moss said late last year: "Since Sean has been gone, I've learned so much from him not being here. It makes me appreciate life more. Every time I step on to the field, I do it with me and with Sean. I'm going to do that for the rest of my career."

As far as 2008, the Redskins' roster has been altered somewhat and the coaching staff has a new look now that Jim Zorn has replaced Joe Gibbs. But the organization as a whole retains such strong memories regarding Taylor, who would have turned 25 on April 1 of this year.

The NFL granted Taylor his Pro Bowl spot and teammates Chris Samuels, Chris Cooley and Ethan Albright donned his No. 21 in Honolulu this past February 10. And Taylor's locker at Redskins Park has not been altered, except for a glass covering that now preserves it.

His image endures around the facility, to be certain.

As best they could, football fans everywhere celebrated Sean Taylor's life, late in 2007 in the weeks following his horrific death. Such celebratory efforts should, and no doubt will, find their way into 2008 and beyond as well.

One way to do that, perhaps, is to read and to listen to the thoughts and laments of some of those who were closest to him.

Taylor is survived by long-time girlfriend Jackie Garcia, his young daughter Jackie, his father Pedro Taylor and mother Donna Junor.

At Redskins Park and around the NFL, these were some of the comments to emerge in the immediate aftermath of the death, the tragic death, of a rare NFL talent:

— Redskins owner Daniel M. Snyder

"We really will miss Sean. For Joe [Gibbs] and I, Sean was our first draft pick together, four seasons ago. For me personally and all of us here at Redskins Park, we got to know him so well. Over the last two years I got a chance to really see him grow as a man off the field. He became very important to me, our organization and Coach Gibbs."

— Former Redskins head coach Joe Gibbs

"The thing I want to make aware, with Sean, over the last year and a half, Sean really matured. To give you a little feeling, he was in every chapel service that I can remember. I think his life and the way he dealt with everybody showed the real maturity."

— Redskins quarterback Jason Campbell

"Sean was a dear friend to all of us. We're all like a family and it's like we lost a family member. Sean was a great person. I just wish everyone had the opportunity to get a chance to know him because if you just sit down and you talk to Sean one-on-one, he's a special person."

— Redskins wide receiver Santana Moss

"He was my modern day Ronnie Lott."

— Redskins running back Clinton Portis

"You think about Sean and you think, he gave it his all. He is going to rest in peace and we are going to keep his memory alive."

— Redskins linebacker London Fletcher

"From the Sean I know, I see a player and a person who has grown so much. You've heard things about Sean being standoffish, but he hasn't been like that with me at all."

— Redskins linebacker Marcus Washington

"The thing I always got a kick out of is when I would introduce Sean to my friends and family after a game. He would be so attentive, so caring."

— Redskins safety Reed Doughty

"I talked to Sean right before I left for the [Tampa] game. He just offered a lot of words of encouragement and told me to go play my best. He always believed in me."

— Redskins defensive end Andre Carter

"Sean took pride in working hard for this organization and working hard for his teammates."

"I got a chance to know Sean a little bit. In fact, he was one of the first guys to say hello and introduce himself to me when I was traded here. The thing that stood out to me about Sean was after our first game here, the home opener against the Dolphins, we were in the players parking lot afterwards and I have three young kids and my two boys are big football fans and they were really struck and impressed with Sean Taylor and to actually meet him. Sean actually spent some time [with them]. He didn't just sign a book and send them on their way, but talked to them. As a father, that stood out."

— Eagles head coach Andy Reid

"I listened to the respect and remorse that Coach Gibbs and James Thrash had and felt for Sean. These are two people I know and respect greatly. Sean's passing will have an impact on the Washington Redskins organization and the entire NFL community."

— Giants tight end Jeremy Shockey

"Fatherhood really changed him. He grew up and matured. That baby [daughter Jackie] had transformed his life. Working out with him during the offseason, I witnessed a change, like night and day."

— Ravens running back Willis McGahee

"Sean was a great player, but more importantly a special person. Life is precious and you're reminded of that every day."

— Browns tight end Kellen Winslow, Jr.

"Sean and I had a special bond. We came in to college together, we left for the NFL the same year and were drafted right next to each other. Sean's future was taken away from him by a senseless act of violence. I am at a loss for words to describe the pain I feel for Sean and his family."

OWNERSHIP

Daniel M. Snyder

Owner & Chairman

Daniel M. Snyder's life has been consumed by an enduring love for the Washington Redskins.

Growing up in the DC area, his youth and young adulthood were shaped and inspired by his devotion to the team. Now entering his tenth season as owner, Snyder has put his passion into action, guiding the Redskins toward victory, on and off the field. He has consistently led the franchise to new prominence in the community, the business world, and the National Football League. Under his leadership, the team has raised millions of dollars for charities, maintained its place in the top-tier of the most valuable franchises, and visited the NFL playoffs three times.

In 2007, Head Coach Joe Gibbs took the Redskins to the NFL playoffs for the second time in three years, playing in their fifth playoff game since Snyder purchased the team in 1999. Following Gibbs' retirement, Snyder selected Jim Zorn as Gibbs' successor, adding to the lengthy line of successful head coaches developed under the tutelage of Mike Holmgren.

Snyder, 43, is prominent in the affairs of the NFL, where his marketing and media expertise has been recognized with appointments to the Broadcast Committee, the Business Ventures Committee, the Digital Media Committee, the Hall of Fame Committee (which oversees the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, OH), and separately as a member of the Board of Directors of the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

The Redskins, who continue to be ranked at the very top of Forbes magazine's list of the world's most valuable sports franchises, remain at the fore of NFL marketing and business organizations. Since buying the team, Snyder has launched a highly successful retail arm, with 15 Official Redskins Stores in Virginia and Maryland, as well as mobile units for use at home games and other events. FedExField, the team's wholly-owned stadium, is the largest in the League with more than 92,000 seats. Over recent years, Snyder has invested approximately $100 million in improvements to the facility, including escalators, updated signage capabilities, more than 1,000 flat-screen TVs in concourses and other areas, as well as the League standard-setting Owner's Club East and Owner's Club West private luxury suite. The team's media ventures, primarily delivered via www.redskins.com, include television and radio broadcast via the Internet, a robust editorial staff, professional sports first full-time independent blogger, and Extremeskins.com, the team's fan forum with over 100,000 registered members. The team also produces five television programs, broadcast in partnership with local television outlets.

Snyder was founder, Chairman and CEO of Snyder Communications, Inc. (he was the youngest CEO of a New York Stock Exchange company at the time). From its launch in 1985 the company grew to a global organization of 12,000 employees, 77 offices in 17 countries, and more than $1 billion in annual revenues. The company's leading role in providing over 200 of the Fortune 500 client base with targeted marketing solutions, including advertising and marketing services, led to its acquisition in March 2000 by the French marketing firm Havas for more than $2.3 billion, at the time the largest such merger in the history of the advertising/marketing industry.

He is founder and Chairman Emeritus of InVentiv Health (NASDAQ: VTIV), one of the most successful financial performers on the NASDAQ stock exchange. He also is Chairman of the Board of Six Flags, Inc., (NYSE: SIX). Snyder's RedZone Capital investment firm added the Johnny Rockets chain of hamburger, fries and shake shops to its portfolio of owned companies, as well as dick clark productions, inc., the premier producer of live television programs such as the Golden Globe awards, the Academy of Country Music Awards, the American Music Awards and the hit reality series "So You Think You Can Dance," as well as numerous other productions. Additionally, Snyder is founder and Managing Member of the Board of Red Zebra Broadcasting, LLC, which operates nine radio stations airing Redskins broadcasts, popular national radio shows and locally generated programming. He is a partner with Tom Cruise in Cruise/Wagner Productions, the actor's production company, and is an Executive Producer of Cruise's upcoming film "Valkyrie." He is active in a variety of other private business ventures, both as an investor and as an advisor to management. He is a frequent invitee to share his experiences and views with business organizations nationwide, and is enshrined in the Jewish Sports Hall of Fame.

Snyder continues as one of the Washington area's most prominent community leaders. He is active in the Larry King Heart Foundation, and devotes most of his public philanthropic efforts to Washington's Children's Hospital and the Center for Missing and Exploited Children. His support enabled construction of the Snyder Family Emergency Medicine and Trauma Center at Children's Hospital. He is a member of the Children's Hospital Foundation Board of Directors. He also funded construction of the Daniel M. Snyder and Family Communication Center at the Center for Missing and Exploited Children. Each day the Center handles hundreds of calls from around the nation from law enforcement organizations, parents of missing children, runaways seeking help and people responding to the Center's well-known awareness campaigns on behalf of missing children. He also serves on the Executive Board of the Martin Luther King Memorial Project.

In 2000, Snyder founded the Washington Redskins Charitable Foundation, which draws on the prominence and leverage of the Redskins organization to fund and further community projects throughout Maryland, Virginia and Washington, DC. Since its inception, Charitable Foundation programs have directly touched nearly 1 million participants and have contributed nearly $15 million to individuals, groups and organizations. The Foundation maintains five signature programs:

- Redskins Read, which provides activity books and funds for purchase of books to local branch libraries, after-school programs and literacy centers, as well as facilitating the involvement of Redskins players in reading programs throughout the year.
- Fields for Tomorrow, which renovates, upgrades and maintains football fields at high schools throughout Washington, DC, and Prince George's County, MD, home of FedExField.
- Coaches in the Classroom, an innovative partnership with the National Football Foundation in which the Charitable Foundation funds academic coaches at area high schools to help student athletes balance their sports and education demands.
- The Redskins 4th and Life program brings thousands of graduating high school football players from throughout the greater Washington, DC, area to an annual symposium at FedExField where Redskins players and alumni provide guidance on what it takes to continue participating in football, as well as what it takes to be successful in life after football.
- Redskins All Stars, a program that recognizes and encourages community service and teamwork among area youth. Groups of children between the ages of 5 and 18, along with their youth leaders, coaches, teachers, and parents are eligible to participate in the program. Since 2000, more than 120,000 people have participated in the program with the support of nearly $1 million of direct grants. In 2007 youth participating in the program completed 25,585 volunteer hours.

The Charitable Foundation also participates in a wide range of other community service efforts, including the annual distribution of Thanksgiving food baskets to residents in need in Prince George's County, MD. Each year Snyder, Redskins players and other volunteers distribute more than 33,000 pounds of turkey and 120,000 pounds of other food.

Since the early days of his business career, from his home office as a teenager through the founding of Snyder Communications in Bethesda, MD, to ownership of the Washington Redskins, Daniel M. Snyder has surrounded himself with trusted advisors and supporters. It is those family members and associates who round out the ownership group of the Washington Redskins.

Before launching a business initiative or making a critical business decision, they are the key individuals Snyder has turned to as partners, advisors, and confidants.

Snyder's sister Michele Snyder, a founder of Snyder Communications, shares his ambitious spirit. Her creativity, operational skills, and business instincts have played an instrumental role in the success of Team Snyder over the years.

A calm and steady influence have been the contributions of Gerry and Arlette Snyder, parents of the Redskins owner. A long-time journalist and author with more than two dozen books to his credit, Gerry Snyder was editor-in-chief of Snyder Communications during the early years of the company. Gerry Snyder died in 2003 at age 69.

The team training facility at Redskins Park has been named in his memory. Arlette Snyder, who maintains the family ownership position in the team, continues her role as a primary advisor to the owner and his other partners.

Robert Rothman is Chairman of the Board of Florida Bank Group, Inc., and Chairman and CEO of the Black Diamond Group, Inc., in Tampa, Florida. He was Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Consolidated International Group, Inc., which owned and operated insurance companies in Europe and North America, from 1987 to 1999.

Prior to founding the Consolidated Group of companies in 1987, he was Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of Beneficial Insurance Group. Rothman began his career with Ernst & Young in New York after graduating from

Redskins Firsts

■ The Washington Redskins became the first and only team in NFL history to win a World Championship in their first year by defeating the Chicago Bears 28-21 to claim the 1937 title. On February 13, 1937, the National Football League approved the transfer of the Boston Redskins franchise to Washington, D.C. The Redskins, in their first season in Washington, compiled an 8-3 record on the road to the NFL title.

■ On September 16, 1937, the Redskins played their first game in D.C. Washington was victorious over the New York Giants at a flood-lighted Griffith Stadium, 13-3.

■ On August 9, 1938, the Washington Redskins formed the NFL's first marching band. Later, on August 17, 1938, "Hail to the Redskins" made its debut as the first fight song by any team in the NFL.

■ In 1938, the Redskins became the first team in the NFL to have its own radio network carry all its games.

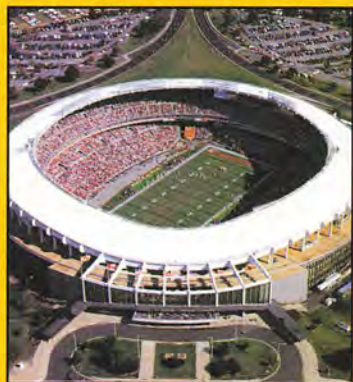

■ In 1950, the Washington Redskins became the first team in the NFL to have all its games televised locally. On September 26, 1954, the Redskins became the first team in the NFL to have its game televised regionally, when their contest at San Francisco was televised back to Washington and throughout the South.

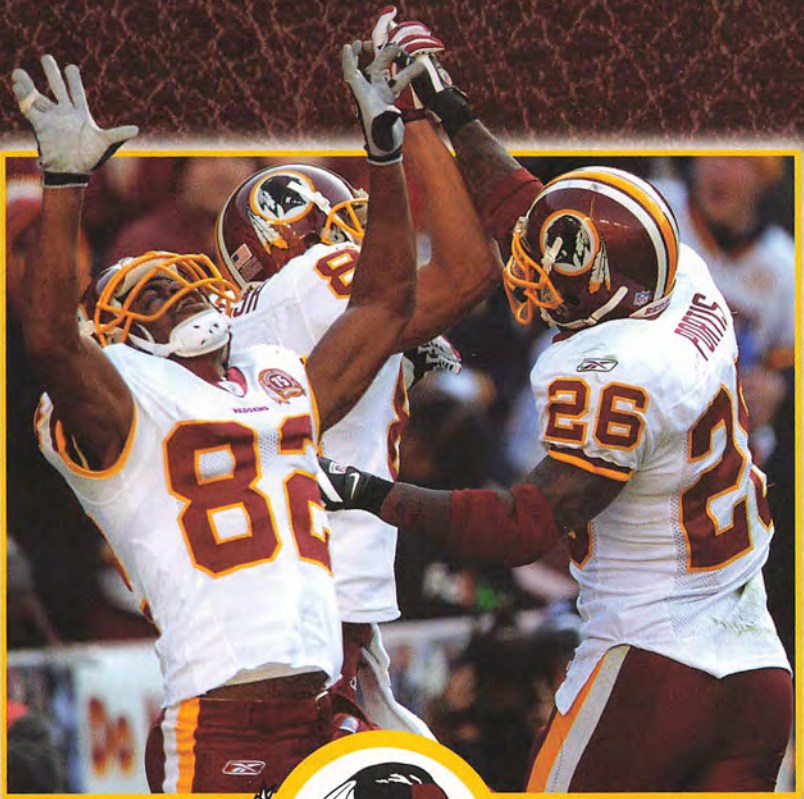

■ The first regular season game at D.C. stadium (re-named RFK Stadium in 1968) was played on October 1, 1961.

■ It didn't come easy, but on December 17, 1961 the Redskins finally got their first D.C. Stadium win in the '61 season finale with Dallas. Dickie James scored four touchdowns, a Redskins single-game record (Larry Brown tied it in 1973), to lead the Redskins to a 34-24 victory. The win ended a 23-game undefeated streak for the Redskins dating back to the 1960 season.

■ The Washington Redskins became the first and only team in NFL history to win three Super Bowls (XVII, XXII, XXVI) with three different quarterbacks (Joe Theismann, Doug Williams, Mark Rypien).

■ On September 14, 1997, the Redskins opened their new stadium, now called FedExField, with a thrilling 19-13 overtime victory against the Arizona Cardinals in front of a record crowd of Washington fans.

Vinny Cerrato

Executive Vice President / Football Operations

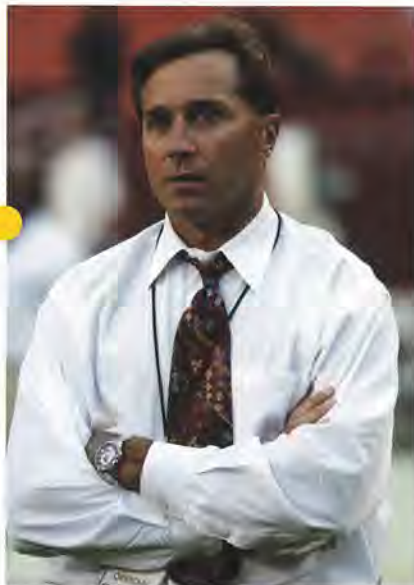

17th NFL Season/9th Redskins

Entering his ninth season with the Washington Redskins and his 17th season in the National Football League, Vinny Cerrato was named Executive Vice President/Football Operations on January 22, 2008. In this role, Cerrato assumes all aspects of the team's football organization including personnel, directing the Redskins draft, identifying free agency needs and acquisitions, coordination of all pro and college player evaluations and day-to-day football operations of the organization.

"The appointment to this position is recognition of the valuable role Vinny played last season," said Washington Redskins Owner Daniel M. Snyder. "During this past season, we were hit with an unprecedented number of injuries, and Vinny consistently identified players who stepped in to help take us to the playoffs in 2007."

Cerrato began a new chapter with the Redskins after playing a central role in leading the search of the hiring of Redskins head coach Jim Zorn, who was introduced as the team's 27th head coach on February 10, 2008.

During his tenure with the Redskins, Cerrato has helped lay a solid foundation with his penchant of adding significant football talent to Washington's roster. He has drafted or acquired eight players who earned Pro Bowl honors: LB LaVar Arrington, T Chris Samuels, WR Laveranues Coles, LB Marcus Washington, WR Santana Moss, TE Chris Cooley, LS

Ethan Albright and the late S Sean Taylor.

A pair of Cerrato's signature moves occurred in consecutive off-seasons when he completed trades for RB Clinton Portis in 2004 and Moss in 2005. Portis has totaled 4,616 yards with the Redskins - which ranks him fourth all-time among Redskins running backs — while Moss earned a trip to the Pro Bowl in 2005.

Building on the success of those pair of trades, Cerrato has assembled a roster with an outstanding core of veteran talent via free agency with the additions of DE Andre Carter, DT Cornelius Griffin, LB London Fletcher and QB Todd Collins. He has added rising talents in Cooley, QB Jason Campbell, S LaRon Landry, CB Carlos Rogers and LB Rocky McIntosh through the NFL Draft. Additionally, Cerrato has bolstered the roster in the later rounds of the NFL Draft with the additions of DT Anthony Montgomery in the fifth round and S Reed Doughty and DT Kedric Golston in the sixth round in 2006.

Many draft experts billed the Redskins'

2008 draft class as one of the best in the league. Cerrato executed a draft day trade by moving out of the first round and acquiring two additional second-round draft picks to go along with their allotted second-rounder. He used the picks to add talent and depth to the receiving corps with the selection of WR Devin Thomas, TE Fred Davis and WR Malcolm Kelly.

Cerrato began his first tour in Washington in the summer of 1999. His first two years in Washington were busy as he helped acquire future Hall of Famers Bruce Smith and Deion Sanders, as well as several free agents including Irving Fryar and Mark Carrier. He swapped first-round draft picks with the 49ers, leading to the additions of the second and third overall picks used to select Arrington and Samuels in the 2000 NFL Draft.

Cerrato left the Redskins for the 2001 season, spending the year as an analyst for ESPN, ESPN Radio and ESPN.com. He rejoined the team in 2002 as Director of Player Personnel and was named Vice President of Football Operations in 2003.

Prior to coming to Washington, he spent eight seasons (1991-98) with the San Francisco 49ers including their Super Bowl XXIX championship in 1994. Cerrato joined San Francisco in 1991 as Director of College Scouting, helping to draft players including Ted Washington, Ricky Watters, Merton Hanks, Dana Stubblefield, Bryant Young and Lee Woodall. In 1995, Cerrato was promoted to Director of Player Personnel, overseeing all college scouting and draft activities as well as pro scouting of NFL players and opponents. Again, Cerrato made an impact as his drafts produced Pro Bowl performers Terrell Owens, R.W. McQuarters, Jeremy Newberry, Lance Schulters and Fred Beasley. Overall, Cerrato drafted 16 players selected to the Pro Bowl with the 49ers, and Stubblefield and Young each were named Rookie of the Year in 1993 and 1994, respectively.

In addition, he made an immediate impact in the free agent market - signing 10 players who earned Pro Bowl appearances and inking the aforementioned Sanders, who was named the NFL Defensive Player of the Year in 1994.

Prior to entering the NFL, Cerrato served as the football recruiting coordinator under Lou Holtz at Notre Dame (1986-90). During that time, the Irish played in four Bowl games, won the 1988 NCAA National Championship, and had 23 players selected in the first and second rounds of the NFL Draft.

Cerrato began his career as a graduate assistant for the Minnesota Golden Gophers (1983-84). He was promoted to recruiting coordinator in 1985, a position he served one year before moving on to Notre Dame.

A 1982 graduate of Iowa State, Cerrato lettered at quarterback and wide receiver all four years in college. He was born in Flushing, NY and grew up in Albert Lea, MN, where he played football, track and hockey. Cerrato and his wife Rebecca, an orthopedic surgeon who specializes in foot and ankle care, have two sons, Vincent and Charles.

Jim Zorn

Head Coach

23rd NFL Season/1st Redskins

On February 10, 2008, Redskins Owner Daniel M. Snyder welcomed Jim Zorn as the franchise's 27th head coach, ushering in a new chapter in Redskins history.

Zorn, an NFL quarterback from 1976-87 and an NFL assistant coach the last 11 years, brings an approach that he describes as "constant and consistent" in terms of how he manages coaches and players. He envisions a Redskins team that is high energy and plays smart and steady.

"My hope is to hold the traditions and the fight that the Redskins have always had in high regard," Zorn said. "I am going to try in my best effort to continue that tradition in my tenure here as the head football coach."

Zorn reached the top of his profession in an exciting couple of weeks.

Zorn was originally hired as the Redskins' offensive coordinator on January 26, 2008. He impressed Snyder and Executive Vice President of Football Operations Vinny Cerrato so much that, two weeks later, they decided to offer him the head coaching job. He succeeds Hall of Fame coach Joe Gibbs.

"We wanted a head coach that had great character, integrity, leadership skills, smarts, drive, energy and passion," said Snyder. "In Coach Zorn, we ended up with a person that has all of those attributes, plus much, much more."

Zorn joins the Redskins from the Seattle Seahawks where he spent the last seven seasons (2001-07) as quarterbacks coach. The Seahawks won four consecutive division titles, made five straight playoff appearances and posted a franchise-best 13-3 record and first-ever Super Bowl appearance in 2005.

During his time in Seattle, Zorn worked with Seahawks Head Coach Mike Holmgren and Offensive Coordinator Gil Haskell in implementing the team's offense while also continuing in the development of the team's quarterbacks.

Zorn tutored QB Matt Hasselbeck who set a franchise record with 3,841 passing yards in 2003. Hasselbeck has become the franchise's most-efficient passer (85.1 rating) while joining Zorn as the only franchise quarterback to pass for 3,000-plus yards in three consecutive seasons.

In 2007, Hasselbeck set Seattle single-season marks for attempts (562), completions (352) and yards (3,966). He also threw for a career-high 28 touchdowns en route to his third Pro Bowl selection.

In 2006, Hasselbeck started just 12 games after suffering a knee injury in the middle of the season and finished the year with a fractured finger on his left hand. In the interim, Zorn helped with the development of Seneca Wallace, who completed 58% of his passes, tossed eight touchdowns, posted a 76.2 passer rating and a 2-2 record in the most extensive playing time of his four-year career.

In 2005, Zorn guided Hasselbeck to his second Pro Bowl appearance and the NFC's top-rated passer (4th NFL) with a 98.2 rating en route to Super Bowl XL. Hasselbeck directed the NFL's second-ranked offense to a franchise-record 11 consecutive wins and in his four December games he posted the fourth-best passer rating in NFL history (135.5), including 10 touchdowns to one interception, and completed 76% of his passes.

Zorn's 2002 campaign had Trent Dilfer open the season as the starter and concluded with Hasselbeck under center. Seattle's passing attack ranked third in the NFL averaging 254.9-yards a game. Hasselbeck finished the season ranked first in the NFC with a 63.7 completion percentage and second in the NFC with a 87.8 passer rating. Hasselbeck passed for more than 300 yards four times, including a franchise-record 449 in the season finale at San Diego. Hasselbeck joined Zorn as the only Seahawks quarterbacks to pass for at least 300 yards in back to back games. Zorn accomplished the feat in 1979 and 1981.

Zorn's 2001 quarterback crop included Holmgren's hand-picked starter Hasselbeck, Super Bowl XXXV quarterback Dilfer and 2000 part-time starter Brock Huard. Zorn groomed Hasselbeck and helped the first-year starter to become the AFC's fifth-rated passer on third-down with a rating of 80.6.

Zorn joined the Seahawks as quarterbacks coach after serving in the same capacity with the Detroit Lions (1998-00). He was instrumental in the development of rookie quarterback Charlie Batch in 1998. Batch's 88.3 passer rating that season ranks as the fourth-highest rookie mark in NFL history. Zorn broke into the NFL coaching ranks as an offensive assistant for the Seahawks in 1997.

Zorn spent eight seasons in the collegiate ranks before his pro debut. He spent two seasons (1995-96) as quarterbacks coach at the University of Minnesota and three

His playing career began in the Seahawks' inaugural 1976 season, starting all 14 games at quarterback. He went on to play nine seasons for the Seahawks. After departing Seattle, he finished his playing career with the Green Bay Packers (1985), the Canadian Football League's Winnipeg Blue Bombers (1986) and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers (1987).

Zorn is one of only eight players inducted to the Seahawks' Ring of Honor. He was named NFC Offensive Rookie of the Year (1976) and ranks second in the Seahawks' record book behind Dave Krieg in yards (20,122), completions (1,593), attempts (2,992), and touchdowns (107). His three consecutive 3,000-yard seasons were tops in team history, since broken by Hasselbeck in 2005, and he was the first Seattle quarterback to record back-to-back 300-plus yard games—a feat he accomplished twice.

Zorn, 55, and his wife, Joy, have four children: daughters Rachael, Sarah, Danielle and son Isaac. Rachael is married to Neal Mitchell, and the two are proud parents of infant daughter Hollis Joy.

Jim and Joy Zorn are active in Medical Teams International and Pro Athletes Outreach.

Medical Teams International is dedicated to implementing and supporting programs that address the causes and effects of inadequate health care worldwide. Their teams of medical, dental and other health professionals volunteer to serve in field stations, hospitals and clinics worldwide.

Pro Athletes Outreach is led by former NFL offensive tackle Norm Evans and his wife, Bobbie, in its training of professional athletes and their wives to become leaders in Christ. In 1998, Pro Athletes Outreach expanded its scope to provide conferences to help train and equip coaches to support their work with athletes.

In 2004, Bernstein moved to Washington, D.C. to start an athletic training business that developed a web-based fitness management system. His coaching techniques were employed department wide at Georgetown University and attracted the attention of the Washington Redskins. In 2004 the Redskins contracted him to provide sprinting instruction for the off-season strength and conditioning program.

Personal: Bernstein received his bachelor's degree in economics from Johns Hopkins University. While playing football at JHU, he received All-America honors for three consecutive years and was named The Centennial Conference Defensive Player of the Year in 1997.

Defensive Coordinator

Greg Blache

21st NFL Season
5th Redskins

Coaching: After four seasons directing the Redskins' defensive line, Greg Blache was named defensive coordinator on January 26, 2008.

Blache takes over a Redskins defense that re-established itself in 2007, finishing eighth overall and third in the NFC in total defense.

Blache's defensive units have always had a reputation for being aggressive and physical.

"Greg is an outstanding coach whose defenses are among the best in the league year after year," Head Coach Jim Zorn said. "His experience, knowledge and preparation make him one of the top defensive minds in the NFL. His game plans always put players in the best possible position to succeed."

In three of the last four seasons, Blache has helped oversee a Redskins' defense that has finished in the Top 10 in overall defense (3rd in 2004; 9th in 2005; and eighth in 2007).

Last year, the defense climbed 23 spots from its previous overall ranking in 2006 (31st in 2006, eighth in 2007). Only the Tennessee Titans' defense showed a greater improvement in that span (32nd-ranked unit to fifth overall in 2007).

Blache's blueprint for success starts up front. His defensive line played a pivotal role as Washington finished fourth in the NFL in rush yardage allowed (91.3 avg.) in 2007, jumping 23 spots from its previous ranking in 2006 (27th in 2006, 4th in 2007).

The defense turned in some of its most inspired play during its four-game winning streak in December 2007 - en route to a NFC Wild Card playoff berth. The defensive line played a key role in a pair of late-season wins at Minnesota and against Dallas. Washington's front line limited the Vikings' top-rated rushing attack to just 87 yards and stifled Rookie of the Year RB Adrian Peterson to just 27 yards. The following week - the Redskins limited the Cowboys to a franchise-low one yard rushing as a team. Pro Bowl RB Marion Barber finished with minus-6 yards rushing on six carries.

Throughout the season, Blache emphasized pressure on the quarterback and his defensive line improved from 13 sacks in 2006 to 25 last year. (Overall, the Redskins' defense improved from 19 sacks in 2006 to 33 last year.) Andre Carter led the way with 10.5 sacks, while Marcus Washington, lining up at defensive end in pass-rushing situations, had five sacks. Promising first-year player Chris Wilson had four sacks in the regular season and added two more in the Redskins' playoff game at Seattle.

Blache saw potential in 2006 fifth-round draft pick Anthony Montgomery and 2006 sixth-round draft pick Kedric Golston—and both defensive tackles emerged as starting-caliber linemen the last two seasons. Golston started 13 games in 2006, while Montgomery started all 16 games opposite veteran Cornelius Griffin last year. Montgomery finished with 47 tackles (35 solo), five tackles for a loss, a half-sack and two fumble recoveries in 2007.

In 2005, Blache's defensive line helped the Redskins finish ninth overall in total defense. In his first season with the Redskins in 2004, Blache made an immediate impact as Washington's defensive unit finished third overall and second in rush yardage allowed (81.5 avg.) - which represents the best overall ranking since Washington finished atop the league in rushing yards allowed with 80.6 yards per game in 1983.

Prior to joining the Redskins, Blache spent five seasons with the Chicago Bears as defensive coordinator. During his time in Chicago, the Bears defense saw tremendous improvement.

In 2003, his defense finished the season fifth in the NFC in total defense, and 14th in the NFL, the team's highest league ranking since 1998. During his tenure, Blache's defenses forced 138 turnovers, including 37 in 2001, the most by a Bears defense since 1990, and accounted for 13 touchdowns (two in 1999, four in 2000, five in 2001, one in 2002, and one in 2003).

In 2002, Blache dealt with numerous injuries to the Bears defense, leading to 11 different starting lineups over the course of 16 games. While juggling personnel, the Bears defense continued their attacking, aggressive style that set records during the 2001 season. They forced 64 tackles behind the line of scrimmage in 2002 and reached a league plateau by forcing at least one turnover in 33 consecutive games, the second longest active streak in the NFL at the time.

In 2001, Blache molded the Bears defense into one of the top units in the league, producing the top-ranked scoring defense by allowing only 203 points in 16 games (12.7 points per game). His run defense finished second in the NFL and first in the NFC, allowing just 82.1 yards per game, while allowing only three rushes of 20 yards or more all seasons and only six rushing touchdowns.

Prior to joining the Bears, Blache served as defensive line coach for the Indianapolis Colts for five seasons (1994-98) and held the same position with the Green Bay Packers for six years (1988-93).

In addition to his pro coaching experience, Blache has held positions with several college programs. He began his coaching career as a defensive assistant at his alma mater Notre Dame in 1968 after suffering a leg injury that ended his playing career.

Following his graduation in 1971, he stayed on as a graduate assistant and then as an assistant coach for the Fighting Irish for four more seasons (1972-75).

He moved on to join Tulane's staff in 1976, where he coached the offensive line (1976-77), outside linebackers (1978-79) and defensive backs (1980).

He then returned to Notre Dame to coach the running backs (1981), defensive line and outside linebackers (1982-83).

After spending 1984-85 as defensive line coach of the USFL's Jacksonville Bulls, he returned to the college ranks at Southern University (1986) and Kansas (1987).

Offensive Line

Joe Bugel

31st NFL Season
14th Redskins

Coaching: Joe Bugel returned to the Redskins in 2004 as assistant head coach - offense. The 30-year NFL coaching veteran has a long and storied legacy with the Redskins that included building the legendary "Hogs," the Redskins offensive line of the 1980s. Bugel continues to direct the offensive line and looks to build similar success that he enjoyed during his first tour with the team.

During his introductory press conference, Redskins Head Coach Jim

Zorn shared in his excitement of having the opportunity to work with Bugel.

"I am pleased to have a legendary offensive line coach in Joe Bugel on my staff," Zorn said. "He has done a tremendous job taking me through the Redskins' running game, the terminology, the blocking schemes and his favorite play, '50 gut.' As a first-year head coach, his expertise is invaluable."

Bugel's expertise as an offensive line coach is to fill a void when projected starters sustain injuries. Last season, Bugel faced his biggest challenge since returning to Washington in 2004. He was without the services of a pair of his starters on the right side and was forced to make a series of adjustments. Right tackle Jon Jansen (ankle surgery) landed on injured reserve after the season opener against Miami and right guard Randy Thomas (triceps injury) missed 14 contests. Overall, Bugel's offensive line featured six different lineups and three different starters at the right tackle position.

Despite the injuries, Bugel's front line paved the way for the Redskins to finish fifth in the NFC and 12th in the NFL in rushing yards per game (116.9 yards per game) in 2007. RB Clinton Portis ranked third in the NFC and sixth in the NFL with 1,262 yards and 11 touchdowns in 2007.

Bugel relied heavily on left tackle Chris Samuels, who earned his fifth Pro Bowl selection (third straight under Bugel), veteran left guard Pete Kendall, who was acquired just prior to the start of the 2007 season, and the steady play of center Casey Rabach.

Additionally, he received solid contribution from a pair of veterans in Jason Fabiani, who made 14 starts for the injured Thomas and Todd Wade, who made 10 starts in place of Jansen. The most pleasant contribution came from undrafted rookie tackle Stephon Heyer, who became the third player to start at right tackle in Week 11 at Tampa Bay. Heyer earned the starting job for the final five games at right tackle and held Pro Bowl DE Michael Strahan without a sack in a 22-10 victory over the eventual Super Bowl champion New York Giants in Week 15.

From 2004-07, Bugel has had a player eclipse the 1,000-yard rushing mark each season: Clinton Portis, 1,315 in 2004; Portis, 1,513, in 2005; Ladell Betts, 1,154 in 2006 and Portis, 1,262 in 2007.

Bugel's offensive front led the Redskins to consecutive Top 10 finishes in rushing yards per game in the 2005 and 2006 seasons. The Redskins ranked seventh in the NFL and averaged 136.4 yards per game in 2005. The following season (2006), Washington ranked fourth in the NFL with an average of 138.5 yards per contest. Additionally, the Redskins pass protection unit allowed just 19 sacks, third-lowest in the NFL in 2006.

In his first stint with the Redskins (1981-89), Bugel developed the dominating "Hogs" offensive line that included stalwarts Russ Grimm, Joe Jacoby, Mark May, Jeff Bostic, George Starke and others. He began as the Redskins offensive coordinator in 1981 and was promoted to assistant head coach in 1983.

Under Bugel's direction, the Redskins scored a then-NFL record 541 points (1983), had four 1,000-yard rushers, one 4,000-yard passer and nine 1,000-yard receivers. Washington won two Super Bowls while Bugel was with the team, following the 1982 and 1987 seasons. Overall, he has participated in three Super Bowls, six conference championships and 24 playoff contests.

Bugel returned to coaching in 2004 after a two-year respite. From 1998-2001, he oversaw the offensive line of the San Diego Chargers. He spent three seasons with the Oakland Raiders, serving as assistant head coach/offense from 1995-96 before being named head coach for the 1997 season.

Prior to arriving in Oakland, Bugel served as head coach of the Arizona Cardinals from 1990-93.

Bugel originally entered the NFL in 1975, spending two seasons as the offensive line coach for the Detroit Lions. He joined the Houston Oilers in the same capacity in 1977. During his four seasons with the Oilers, the team set records in rushing and passing.

Before joining the NFL, Bugel spent time coaching at Ohio State (1974), Iowa State (1973), Navy (1969-72) and his alma mater, Western Kentucky (1964-68).

Personal: While earning his degree in physical education, Bugel was an all-conference guard and linebacker. He earned a master's degree in counseling, also at Western Kentucky. A Pittsburgh native, Bugel was a two-way star in football at Munhall High School. In 2005, he was inducted into the Pennsylvania Sports Hall of Fame (Western Chapter). Bugel and his wife, Brenda, have three daughters: Angie, Holly, and Jennifer and a son-in-law, Monte.

Secondary

Jerry Gray

21st NFL Season
3rd Redskins

Coaching: Jerry Gray begins his third season as the Redskins secondary coach after spending the previous five seasons as defensive coordinator for the Buffalo Bills. Gray has amassed more than 20 years of NFL experience, nine seasons as a player and 11 as an assistant coach.

In 2007, the Redskins' secondary was led by veterans Shawn Springs and Fred Smoot, who returned to the team following two seasons in Minnesota.

Together they combined for 129 tackles

(114 solo), five interceptions and 29 pass deflections. Carlos Rogers' season was cut short due to a knee injury and he was placed on injured reserve following Week 8, but Leigh Torrence added depth at the position, totaling 33 tackles (24 solo) and one sack.

While with Buffalo in 2005, the Bills' defense battled multiple injuries and finished 29th in the League in total defense.

In 2004, Gray led a defense that finished second in the NFL in total defense and top five in the NFL in touchdowns allowed (29), yards allowed per game (264.2), passing yards allowed per game (164.0), sacks registered (45) and led the League with 39 turnovers forced.

He orchestrated a major defensive turnaround in 2003 when his defense finished the year ranked second in the NFL in total defense (second against the pass, eight against the run). His defense also ranked fifth overall in points allowed in 2003.

Prior to joining the Bills in 2001, Gray spent the previous four seasons as an assistant at the Tennessee Titans, including the last two as defensive backs coach. He helped Tennessee finish as the NFL's #1 ranked pass defense and total defense in 2000 and also guided two All-Pro starters at each position in the Titans secondary.

Gray originally started with the Titans as the defensive assistant/quality control coach in 1997 before being elevated to the defensive backs position. He broke into the coaching ranks in 1995 as the defensive backs coach at Southern Methodist University.

Playing: Gray played nine seasons in the NFL, earning All-Pro honors four times. He played with the Los Angeles Rams (1985-91), Houston Oilers (1992), and Tampa Bay Buccaneers (1993) before retiring.

He was a four-time Pro Bowler at cornerback (1986-89) with the Rams, finishing with 28 career interceptions during his nine seasons in the NFL. He posted a season-high eight interceptions in 1986, just his second year in the NFL. He was also named the NFL's Defensive Back of the Year in 1989 and earned MVP honors in the 1990 Pro Bowl.

Personal: A native of Lubbock, TX, Gray holds a bachelor of science degree in speech communications from the University of Texas. He was a two-time consensus All-America and two-time Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Year as a safety at Texas in 1983 and '84 and was a first round pick in 1985 (21st overall) of the Los Angeles Rams.

Gray was a member of the University of Texas' All-Time Team and All-Decade Team for the 1980's. He lettered in football, basketball and track at Estacado High in Lubbock and was inducted into the Texas High School Hall of Fame in 1995 and recently named to the All-Time Texas High School team. He and his wife, Sherry, have two sons: Jeremy and Jayden.

Stan Hixon

5th NFL Season
5th Redskins

Coaching: Stan Hixon is in his fifth season as the Redskins wide receivers coach. In 26 years of coaching on both the college and professional level, Hixon has developed outstanding talent at the wide receiver position.

Hixon's unit is led by a pair of veterans in WR Santana Moss (61 receptions for 808 yards and three touchdowns) and WR Antwaan Randle El (51 receptions for 728 yards and one TD). Randle El set career highs in catches and receiving yards last season.

Under Hixon's tutelage, Moss had a breakout season in 2005—his first year with the Redskins—that ended with his first trip to the Pro Bowl.

Moss set a new Redskins franchise record with 1,483 receiving yards on the season, surpassing the previous mark held by Hall of Famer Bobby Mitchell (1,436). Moss also led the team in receptions (84) and average yards per catch (17.7) and was second with nine touchdowns. He finished second in the NFL in receiving yards and sixth in the NFC and 10th in the NFL in receptions. Moss was named NFC Offensive Player of the Week twice after remarkable performances at Dallas (five catches, 159 yards, two fourth-quarter TD catches) and home against the New York Giants (five catches, 160 yards, three TDs).

From 1991-2005, Palermo served as an assistant head coach at the University of Wisconsin. He directed the Badgers' outside linebackers from 1991-95 and the defensive line from 1996-2005.

While at Wisconsin, Palermo produced four first-team All-Americans. His players were selected Big Ten Defensive Lineman of the Year four times—two were named Big Ten Defensive Player of the Year—and named first-team All-Big Ten nine times. Eight of Palermo's defensive linemen have been chosen in the first six rounds of the NFL Draft, including two—Wendell Bryant in 2002 and current Redskins defensive end Erasmus James in 2005—who were taken in the first round. Coaching: Rennie Simmons returned for a second tour with the Redskins in 2004. With a distinguished resume, Simmons brings a high level of experience and versatility to the Washington staff. He has served in several different capacities on offense during his football coaching career.

He currently oversees a tight ends corps that includes Pro Bowl talent Chris Cooley and promising rookie Fred Davis, a 2008 second-round draft pick.

Under Simmons' guidance, Cooley has emerged as one of the NFL's top tight ends. Cooley is fast moving up the franchise list of receptions by a tight end. His 231 career catches through 2007 ranks him third behind Jerry Smith (421) and Don Warren

(244) among all-time Redskins tight ends. Cooley's 231 receptions is the sixth-most hauled in by a tight end since 2004.

Last year, Cooley led the Redskins in receiving with 66 catches for 786 yards and eight touchdowns. It was the second consecutive season that Cooley led the Redskins in receptions.

Simmons coached along-side legendary Redskins head coach Joe Gibbs for 17 years. Their history goes as far back as high school, when they both attended Santa Fe High and then went on to San Diego State to play for Coach Don Coryell.

Simmons originally joined the Redskins coaching staff in 1981, working with tight ends. He coached the offensive line in 1990-91 and then wide receivers in 1992-93.

As an assistant coach, Simmons helped lead the Redskins to four Super Bowl appearances, with three victories, from 1982-91.

During the 1980s, Simmons was responsible for the development of an impressive group of players, including Warren, Clint Didier, Joe Jacoby, Russ Grimm, Art Monk, Gary Clark and Ricky Sanders.

Under Simmons' watch, the Redskins' offensive line led the NFL in fewest sacks allowed (nine) in 1991.

In 1994, Simmons left Washington to coach tight ends for the Los Angeles Rams, and then the offensive line at Houston in 1996. He joined the Atlanta Falcons in 1997, coaching the wide receivers. He took over the tight ends in 2000. In 2001, Simmons began working with the Falcons' offensive line. From 2001-04, the line showed continued improvement in a number of categories, including rush yards, average rush yards gained and pass protection.

Smith's kickoff coverage unit allowed just 19.2 yards per return, third-best in the NFL. The punt coverage unit prospered as well, allowing 6.8 yards per return, sixth-best in the NFL.

Smith also helped develop kicker Shaun Suisham and punter Derrick Frost into steady contributors. Suisham kicked two game-winning field goals, a 39-yarder to beat Miami in Week 1 and a 46-yarder to beat the New York Jets in Week 9.

The Redskins' special teams were represented in the Pro Bowl following the 2007 season, with Ethan Albright earning a spot in the all-star game as the NFC's long snapper.

Offensive Coordinator

Sherman Smith

23rd NFL Season
1st Redskins

Coaching: Sherman Smith joined the Redskins on Feb. 15, 2008, bringing with him 22 years of NFL experience as both a player and assistant coach. Smith is working closely with Head Coach Jim Zorn for the second time in his career; Smith and Zorn were teammates with the Seattle Seahawks from 1976-82.

"Sherman brings outstanding leadership to our team and we are fortunate to add him to our coaching staff," Zorn said. "He will lead the effort in putting together our game plan each week, both in our offensive staff meetings and in our player meetings."

Smith is helping lead the Redskins' transition to the West Coast offense, a short, horizontal passing attack that spreads defenses and opens up running lanes. Smith's coaching background is primarily with running backs, but he has worked under several offensive coordinators who have operated versions of the West Coast offense, including Mike Heimerdinger and Norm Chow.

Smith spent the past 13 seasons as running backs coach with the Tennessee Titans (1995-2007). He also held the title of assistant head coach the last two seasons.

Last year, the Titans finished with the NFL's fifth-ranked rushing attack, averaging 131.8 yards per game. Mobile quarterback Vince Young contributed to that mark. Under Smith's guidance, second-year running back LenDale White led the Titans offense with 1,110 rushing yards on 303 carries. His yardage total placed eighth in the AFC. He logged five 100-yard rushing performances and led the Titans with seven rushing touchdowns.

In 2006, Smith's group of rushers—including QB Young—amassed the sixth-highest rushing total in Titans/Oilers franchise history with 2,214 rushing yards. The team's yards-per-carry average of 4.72 established a new franchise mark. Travis Henry led the Titans' ground game with 1,211 rushing yards and seven touchdowns on 270 carries, while White added 244 rushing yards on 61 carries as a rookie.

From 1996-2003, Smith helped running back Eddie George develop into one of the great running backs in NFL history. With 10,441 career rushing yards, George places 18th on the NFL's all-time rushing list. George is one of 20 running backs in NFL history to reach 10,000 career rushing yards and only the second to reach the mark without missing a game. (The other was Hall of Famer Jim Brown.)

Prior to joining the Titans, Smith was an assistant coach at Illinois for three seasons. He coached tight

Mike Faulkner ~ 1947 - 2008

Long-time Redskins area scout Mike Faulkner passed away on Tuesday, January 15, 2008 in Hays, Kansas, after a year-long battle with pancreatic cancer. He was 60.

Faulkner joined the Redskins as an area scout in 2005. He served in that same capacity with Washington from 1974-78 and was director of college scouting for the Redskins in 2000.

Members of the organization, including former head coach Joe Gibbs, spent significant time last year lending emotional and spiritual support to Faulkner and his family.

"Mike was an important part of the Redskins organization and we are saddened to lose a member of our family," Gibbs said.

"He had a heart for the Redskins and we are grateful for the time and commitment he made to the organization and to each of us. We want to celebrate his life with Laura and thank God for the influence that Mike had on us."

In recent months, Faulkner's wife Laura kept an online journal informing readers of her husband's condition. An entry dated January 10 states: "The nurses here at the hospital are amazed at his strength for as weak and thin as he is. He is frustrated with what he deems too much help, so his patience is still being tested at times. I just love that he still has his spunk!"

Laura Faulkner added: "The tributes on Mike's behalf continue to touch our hearts."

Former Redskins head coach George Allen once said that any young man who wanted to become an NFL coach should be willing to work for free. Faulkner and future Redskins personnel official Charley Casserly were among those who took Allen up on his suggestion. Faulkner was a coaching intern under Allen in the early '70s and was wide receivers coach in 1978 under Jack Pardee.

"Mike had a great eye in terms of evaluating talent," Redskins director of sports medicine Bubba Tyler said. "He wasn't afraid to offer his opinion. And he always stuck by it."

Said Redskins national scout Joel Patten: "This is an industry that changes a lot of people. But not Mike. He was always a straight shooter."

Patten continued: "I'll tell you this: A lot of people in the scouting profession went to Mike for advice. He was always honest, and always responded with dignity and class."

In 2007, Faulkner completed his 32nd NFL season and ninth with the Redskins.

Prior to joining the Redskins in 2005, Faulkner had been an area scout for the New Orleans Saints. He was the Western Regional Supervisor the last two years with the Saints. During his long career in the NFL, Faulkner had coaching stints with the New York Giants (1980), New York Jets (1983-89) and Cleveland Browns (1990). He was an area scout with San Francisco (1991-97) and served in the front office of Seattle (1998-99). As a college football player, Faulkner was quarterback and defensive back at West Virginia Tech from 1965-69.

WEST COAST OFFENSE COMES EAST

New head coach Jim Zorn is installing his version of the West Coast Offense in his first year with the Redskins. The term "West Coast Offense" was first attributed to the passing game established by Don Coryell in the 1970s. Zorn's version resembles the offensive system developed by San Francisco 49ers coaching legend Bill Walsh. This offense thrives on a short, horizontal passing game that spreads defenses and opens up running lanes. It is also a philosophy about how to approach the game, rather than sets of plays and formations. The desired result is to make play-calling more unpredictable and to wear out opposing defenses. Zorn learned the West Coast Offense from Mike Holmgren, a former assistant on Walsh's 49ers teams and current Seattle Seahawks head coach.

DOWNRIGHT DEFENSIVE

The Washington Redskins defense re-established itself as a premier unit in the NFL in 2007, finishing eighth overall and third in the NFC in total defense (305.3 yards per game). In addition, the Redskins finished second in the conference and fourth overall in the league against the run (91.3 yards per game). Washington's defense was led by veteran middle linebacker London Fletcher, who recorded his ninth consecutive season with 100 or more tackles (164 stops in 2007), and safety LaRon Landry, who was named to the NFL All-Rookie Defensive Team. Landry became the first rookie to start all 16 games (in 2007) for the Redskins since 2001. In 2008, Redskins defensive coordinator Greg Blache will also have a veteran core of defensive players returning in CB Shawn Springs (four interceptions in 2007), LB Marcus Washington (59 tackles and five sacks in 2007) and DE Andre Carter (a team-high 10.5 sacks in 2007).

HISTORY OF THE SACK

In 1947, the NFL introduced a new team statistic known as "yards lost attempting to pass," a stat that helped to separate gross yards passing from net yards. In 1963 however, Seymour Siwoff, head of the NFL's official statistical company, the Elias Sports Bureau, suggested a statistic to count the actual number of times a team lost yards attempting to pass. The League agreed and labeled the statistic a "sack," the same word used in the dark-ages to describe a captured town.

Finally in 1982, Elias and the NFL agreed to make individual sacks an official number. With the influx of dominant pass rushers in today's NFL, the sack has become one of the most commonly referenced statistics in the game.

Last season, the Redskins defense combined for 33 sacks, paced by defensive end Andre Carter with 10.5.

COOLEY STEPPING UP

In just four NFL seasons, Chris Cooley has emerged as one of the top tight ends in Redskins franchise history. Entering 2008, Cooley ranks third all-time with 231 career receptions behind Jerry Smith (421) and Don Warren (244).

Cooley needs to catch only 14 passes in 2008 to pass Warren for second place on the Redskins' career receptions list for tight ends. If Cooley continues at his current pace, he will pass Smith in career receptions during the 2011 season.

Cooley is second in franchise history with 2,608 receiving yards (trailing Smith's 5,496) and touchdowns with 27 (trailing Smith's 60).

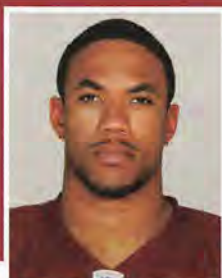

Smith played in 168 games for the Redskins from 1965-77. Only one tight end has played in more games for the Redskins: Warren, the current Redskins pro scout who played in 193 games from 1979-92.

REDSKINS MILESTONES

'Redskin' Through the Years...

Red Cloud. Red Thunder. Red Eagle. Redlands. Red mud.

"The term redskin, applied by Europeans to Algonquians in general and the Delawares in particular," says the Reader's Digest in its book America's Fascinating Indian Heritage, "was inspired not by their natural complexion but by their fondness for vermilion makeup, concocted from fat mixed with berry juice and minerals that provided the desired color." The men "would streak their faces and bodies with bright red ocher and bloodroot," adds the Reader's Digest.

Indians painted their skin for decorative and ceremonial purposes. "Red is generally accepted as being one of the colors most easily available to and most used by Indians," as Ronald P. Koch states in his book Dress Clothing of the Plains Indians.

The Start July 9, 1932	George P. Marshall headed syndicate (Vincent Bendix, Jay O'Brien, Dorland Doyle) that bought NFL franchise for Boston, MA. They contracted to play in Braves-Field, home of National League Baseball team, and were called "The Braves."
The Name	The Boston Gridders moved to Fenway Park, home of the American League Red Sox, and "The Braves" became "The Redskins."
The Franchise Feb. 13, 1937	The Washington Redskins were officially born! The National Football League approved transfer of Boston Redskins franchise to Washington, DC, and a new history began.
The Band Aug. 9, 1937	The famed Redskins Band founded. First of its kind.

First Title Dec. 5, 1937	Ten thousand fans stomped up Broadway behind brass band. Sammy Baugh completed 11 of 15, Cliff Battles ran 75 and 76 yards for TDs, Giants routed 49-14, for Eastern Championship.
World Champ! Dec. 12, 1937	Freezing weather, frozen field, icy-nerved Bears can't stop Baugh. He completed 17 of 33 for 335 yards and 3 TDs. Wayne Millner, the all-time Notre Dame great, escapes with nine catches for 160 yards, including 77 and 55-yd. TD spring.

California Aug. 18, 1941	Redskins brought pro football on large scale for first time to California. Established training quarters in San Diego at Brown Military Academy.
Title Escapes Nov. 23, 1941	Fifty seconds to go in the Eastern Championship Game, Redskins held a 13-10 lead. But Giants got a field goal and touchdown to win, 20-13.
Only Loss Sept. 27, 1942	Giants don't make first down, gained only ONE yard rushing, completed just ONE pass...but it's good for a TD; then they captured another TD on interception...and Redskins suffered their only 1942 defeat, 14-7.
World Champs! Dec. 13, 1942	Bears took early lead on errant pass from center. But Sam Baugh's 85-yd. quick kick set them back on their heels. Wilbur Moore then made a vital interception and followed with a sensational catch for 38-yd TD. Andy Farkas capped victory by carrying ball 10 of 12 times on 80-yd TD tour. Score: 14-6.

SIDELINES

Redskins Greats Darrell Green and

Members of the 2008

DARRELL GREEN

No matter how you look at the all-time list of players who have appeared in burgundy and gold, this much is certain: There has been only one "Mr. Redskin."

Hall of Famer Bobby Mitchell once said this of Darrell Green, holder of the famous nickname: "The best thing about Darrell is that he's our Darrell."

By that Mitchell meant that Green, over the course of his two decades with the Redskins and his corresponding time devoted to community service in the area, has become something of a natural resource for the Washington, D.C., region.

Along with that, in early August, "Mr. Redskin" officially went national.

Green and former teammate Art Monk became the 21st and 22nd former Redskins enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio.

The last time anyone spotted Darrell Green in his famous No. 28, he was taking a victory lap around FedExField on the occasion of his last game, Dec. 29, 2002. It was fitting that the Redskins upended their arch-rival that day, as they outplayed Dallas 20-14.

Between 1983 and 2002, Green supplied Redskins fans with any number of great moments.

For starters, he tracked down Tony Dorsett as a rookie. Four years later, he jumped over the Bears' Cap Boso on the way to his famous punt return at Soldier Field. Just one week later in the 1987 playoffs, he returned to play with bruised ribs that didn't prevent him from stopping Darin Nelson of the Vikings with the game on the line at RFK Stadium.

These are just a few of the signature plays by Green, over the duration of his 20 seasons in the Nation's Capital.

His contributions were not limited to those attained in his 20s or 30s, either. As a player, he was still making plays in his 40s.

In his exceptional 20 years in the NFL, Green missed just 25 games, while setting franchise records in games played (295), starts (258) and interceptions (54).

Green grew up in Houston and was All-State in track and All-City in football at Jones High School.

He was legendary at Texas A&I, where he was named to the Football Coaches All-American Division II team with 56 tackles, four interceptions and two punt returns for touchdowns in his senior year.

After the Redskins selected him with the 28th overall pick of the 1983 draft, Green arrived at Redskins Park wearing No. 28 and ready to impress his teammates and coaches from the get-go.

Said Vernon Dean, who played for the Redskins from 1982-87 and remains one of Green's closest friends: "I remember at his first mini-camp, Darrell was in one-on-one coverage against Virgil Seay and he thought we were bumping and running, but he missed it and fell down. Before the ball got there, Darrell somehow got up and broke up the pass."

Early on, the Redskins knew they had something special in No. 28.

From intercepting at least one pass in 19 consecutive seasons to his seven Pro Bowl appearances, Green helped bring integrity and authenticity to the organization.

- He won the Walter Payton Man of the Year award in 1996, given to an NFL player who has made the biggest impact in the community.

- In 1997, Green returned an interception 83 yards for a touchdown against Philadelphia, the longest return of his career.

- Green picked off his 50th NFL pass against Arizona's Jake Plummer in a 1999 game at FedExField.

- At age 40, he solidified his status as the fastest Redskin when he was clocked in a hand-held time of 4.24 in the 40-yard dash. That was against players who were 10 and 15 years younger.

- As Green's career wound down, he maintained his focus on winning football games, not a retirement tour.

- He served as a mentor to the younger players such as Champ Bailey and Fred Smoot, and as a link to the Redskins' tradition-rich history.

Upon Green's retirement, Redskins greats and Hall of Famers commented about the impact that Green made on their lives—and on football.

"Seeing Darrell come in to the NFL at his size and background, and to last as long he did, he was extraordinary," Redskins Hall of Fame quarterback Sonny Jurgensen said. "To stay healthy, not get hurt, and perform at his level was an absolutely amazing feat. He was a classic player and a classic person."

During his time in the NFL, Green extended himself into the community at a relentless pace through his Darrell Green Youth Life Foundation, which he founded in 1988.

"Most importantly, players need to understand Washington Redskins pride," Green said. "And when I say Washington Redskins, I mean the community, how we as a team fit in the community, and how endeared we are to the fans."

"Just to understand the responsibility we have to them, not only on Sundays but on every day, I think that's very important."

He started the foundation to help provide values-driven education and career training for children mostly in inner cities. He has opened Youth Life Learning Centers in Washington, D.C., North Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Texas.

Art Monk Enshrined in Canton

Hall of Fame Class

ART MONK

As far as Redskins fans are concerned, Art Monk's NFL career reached its zenith on the night of Oct. 12, 1992.

On that date, Art Monk was in the spotlight of the football world. It was a really special occasion for the talented wide receiver who this spring was named to the Pro Football Hall of Fame's Class of 2008.

Back in 1992, in the course of a 34-3 Washington win over the Denver Broncos at RFK Stadium, Monk became the NFL's all-time leading receiver.

With career catch No. 820, Monk passed Steve Largent of Seattle (1977-89) as the NFL's all-time leader. Largent was inducted into the Hall in 1995.

"You don't know what a relief this is," Monk told reporters following that Monday Night achievement in front of 56,371 Redskins fans and a national TV audience.

Monk's record breaker came on a partly cloudy and relatively warm early autumn night. With 3:12 left in the game, Mark Rypien found Monk for a 10-yard gain down the right sideline. Steve Atwater knocked Monk out of bounds at the Denver 24.

With that, Monk entered the NFL record book. He was swarmed by teammates as he pumped his fist into the October air.

On that night 16 years ago, some of the names on the field for the Redskins in addition to Monk and Rypien were Charles Mann, Gary Clark, Jim Lachey, Joe Jacoby, Mark Schlereth, Don Warren and Earnest Byner.

Playing for Denver were John Elway, Shannon Sharpe, Dennis Smith, Karl Mecklenburg and Atwater.

Joe Gibbs told the media: "[Art's] one of the classier guys in pro sports. Family. Community. Dedication. You name it, and Art Monk is tops."

It was a night on which Monk, then in his 13th season with the Redskins, produced seven catches for 69 yards to help his team rebound from a tough 27-24 loss at Phoenix. He finished with 46 catches in 1992.

After moving on to the Jets in 1994 and Philadelphia in 1995, Monk wrapped up his 16-year NFL career with 940 catches, 12,721 receiving yards and 68 TDs.

Many would argue that Hall of Fame recognition was overdue for Monk, who ranks sixth all-time in NFL history in catches.

When he moved into first place among all NFL wide receivers 16 years ago, Art Monk said: "It was important to do it in Washington, D.C., where the fans have given me so much support. I'm glad I was able to do it in front of them."

He added: "The record means a lot to me. The Lord put me in the right situation with the right team in the right city."

Monk was a quiet leader during his playing days. Trash talking and showboating were foreign to his dignified approach to the game.

He set all-time NFL marks for most catches in one season (106 in 1984) and most consecutive games with receptions (183), both of which have been broken, and owns a host of Redskin receiving records.

A three-time Pro Bowler and two-time All-Pro, Monk was selected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame class of 2008 on Saturday, Feb. 2. He was a finalist for induction eight times since becoming eligible in 2001.

"I don't think there's another guy who deserves it more than him," said Don Warren, a tight end who teamed with Monk for 13 seasons in Washington and is a current Redskins scout. "He was a guy who helped the Redskins out tremendously."

Monk's art of pass catching was instrumental in propelling the Redskins' glory teams of the 1980s and early-1990s. He was on the roster for each of the squad's four Super Bowl appearances during the era, earning three rings.

Fans at RFK Stadium named a section after him called the "ART GALLERY."

When asked about his 16-year career, the modest and soft-spoken Monk replied: "I wouldn't have changed a thing. I came in not expecting anything and not even to really last very long in the NFL."

"I didn't think I was even talented enough to play on this level but ended up playing a long time and having a great career. I couldn't have asked for anything better."

Raised in the New York City suburb of White Plains, N.Y., Monk starred in track and football in high school and came to admire such dominant pro receivers as the Redskins' Charley Taylor, Otis Taylor and Paul Warfield.

He received a football scholarship to Syracuse, where he set school receiving records with 102 catches for 1,644 yards and had more than 1,000 yards in both rushing and returning kicks.

Monk, a starter by his fourth game as a Redskin, caught a team-high 58 passes for 797 yards and three TDs in 1980, breaking the club's rookie receiving record set in 1964 by none other than Charley Taylor. He was a unanimous All-Rookie selection.

Monk averaged 49 catches and 721 receiving yards and made 14 TD catches in his first four seasons.

He crafted a historic season in his fifth year, 1984, catching an NFL-record 106 passes for a career-high 1,372 yards and seven TDs.

He broke the record in the season-finale against the Cardinals. Needing seven catches to top the record of 101 set by the Houston Oilers' Charlie Hennigan in 1964, Monk caught 11. His last reception of the game, a 20-yarder on 3rd-and-19, helped set up a field goal that gave the Redskins a 29-27 victory and the NFC East title.

FedExField®

FedExField is the premier stadium in the National Football League. Located in Landover, MD, the privately financed FedExField was completed in a record 17 months and hosted the Redskins home opener September 14, 1997 – a 19-13 overtime win against the Arizona Cardinals.

The stadium is located on a 200-acre site and is the largest stadium in the NFL with 91,704 seats – over 11,000 more than the next largest – the Meadowlands in New Jersey. FedExField is one of just two stadiums with three tiers of luxury suites, a total of 243. Suites are equipped with restrooms, a refrigerator, televisions, a lounge area, two rows of seats, and bar stools.

FedExField increased the Redskins attendance capacity by over 40% when the team left RFK stadium after 1996. Nevertheless, the Redskins have sold out every home game for the past 41 seasons (319 regular-season and 13 playoff games) including all 109 (preseason, regular and postseason) contests at FedExField. All eight games for the 2008 season are sold out as well as both preseason contests.

Construction on FedExField began in March 1996 and cost $250 million. The following year, $30 million was spent to create a 170,000 square-foot atrium encircling the entire stadium making the Joe Gibbs Club Level the most spectacular in the league. When Daniel M. Snyder became the Redskins owner in July 1999, one of his first tasks was to make additional improvements to FedExField. Immediately, millions were invested in such projects as replacing metal rails with glass rails in order to provide unobstructed sight lines in the stadium bowl. The sound system was significantly upgraded and the parking lot was re-structured and re-routed to greatly improve the traffic flow on game days.

Since his inaugural season, Snyder has spent more than $100 million to enhance FedExField. Over the past five seasons, numerous additions have been made. Escalators have been added for fans seated in the stadium's upper tier. The spectacular new Owner's Club Suite Level has been created. A 3,000-foot circumference wind screen has been installed around the top of the stadium to improve fan comfort. A sophisticated radiant heating system has been installed on the loge level. Seats have been added to the upper, lower and loge levels. The Field Club section of seating was added immediately around the playing field, dubbed the "dream seats," given they put fans almost on top of the action. The Hall of fame Store, the original Official Redskins Store, has been remodeled and completely re-merchandised with new Redskins products. Finally, the field has been improved and re-sodded.

During the off-seasons and while the Redskins are away during the football season, FedExField hosts a variety of special events. During the summer of 2005 FedExField hosted country music icon Kenny Chesney's "Somewhere in the Sun 2005" concert and the "Clash of Champions" soccer match between English Premier League member Chelsea FC and Major league soccer's D.C. United. For more information regarding FedExField events, check out Redskins.com.

Welcome to Redskins Park

Rising from a former dairy farm and set on a picturesque 162 acres of land in Ashburn, Virginia, Redskins Park is home to the Gerald S. Snyder Training Facility, the team's year-round headquarters.

The team has called Redskins Park its home since August of 1992, enjoying a private haven away from urban distractions. The complex features four football fields, strength training and sports medicine facilities, offices and meeting rooms for players, coaches and front office staff, and accommodations for print and broadcast media. The building amasses some 65,000 square feet.

Located in Loudoun County, one of the fastest growing areas in the United States, Redskins Park is tucked away from highways and other office buildings. The two-story concrete and glass structure looks deceiving in size. Visitors enter a bright, spacious lobby that leads to three carefully groomed natural grass playing fields and an additional astro-turf practice surface.

The lower level of the building is dedicated to football operations, including player and staff locker rooms, a newly enhanced strength and conditioning center, the equipment room, athletic training rooms and video studio. The athletic training facilities include an x-ray room and dentist office, in addition to private examining rooms for the medical staff that cares for the team throughout the year. The lower level consists of a racquetball court and a half-court basketball gym. A catering kitchen is located adjacent to the gym, used as a dining hall during practice sessions throughout the year. A state-of-the-art players' lounge was added in 2004.

One side of the upper floor consists of coaches' and personnel offices and a large, 105-seat multipurpose auditorium, used for team meetings, press conferences and film sessions. The other side of the building houses offices for the club's accounting, marketing, public relations and administrative offices. The public area of the building consists of large hallways, high ceilings with natural lighting and numerous trophy cases displaying the team's rich history and tradition.

The Sprint studio was completed in the rear of the building in 2005. The glassed studio overlooks the facilities' four practice fields. A first-floor media room has individual cubicles and workspace for beat and visiting media. The media room, auditorium and locker room are wired for direct television uplink.

In 2005, an additional building adjacent to the main facility was constructed housing the Redskins Charitable Foundation, information technology and retail departments.

Washington Redskins Training Camp

Presented by RE/MAX

The Washington Redskins and new Head Coach Jim Zorn will hold their 2008 Training Camp presented by RE/MAX beginning on July 20th at Redskins Park. This will mark the seventh year the Redskins will prepare for the upcoming NFL season at their year-round facility.

Training camp is an annual ritual in the NFL, an opportunity for fans from all over the country to come see their favorite Redskins players in action on the practice field, and get a first glimpse of the newly signed free agents and draft picks.

Nine scheduled practices are open to fans, free of charge. Visitors are encouraged to bring lawn chairs or blankets, as they will be able to sit along the hill overlooking the four playing fields. After each practice, fans will have the opportunity to gather autographs and take photos of their favorite players as they walk off the field to the locker rooms.

Extensive media attention is expected, and to assist visiting press in their coverage, the Redskins provide a media tent and workroom equipped with power inputs and phone lines for data transmission. Credentialed media will have additional access to the players and practice areas, and can coordinate interviews through the Redskins Public Relations Department. All media attending Redskins Training Camp must obtain credentials to gain access to the grounds. Media should fax requests on company letterhead to the attention of Redskins Public Relations at 703-726-7086, before arriving to their first practice at Redskins Park.

The Redskins first held training camp at Redskins Park in 2000, opening the complex to visitors for the first time in franchise history. Thousands of fans from all over the Washington, D.C. area, and beyond, were able to watch their favorite players just steps from the practice fields, gather autographs and take part in the Redskins experience. After a two-year hiatus, with camp being held at Dickinson College in Carlisle, Pennsylvania, the Redskins returned to Ashburn to get ready for the 2003 season, and have remained there since.

For a detailed training camp practice schedule please visit Redskins.com for more information, including updated team news, practice times and training camp directions. Ample parking will be available to all fans visiting Redskins Park at no cost.

First Ladies of Football

Each year, hundreds of talented young women audition for the chance to cheer on the Washington Redskins players and entertain fans along the sidelines of FedExField. Since their inception in 1962, the First Ladies of Football have brought Redskins fans to their feet, both on and off the field.

While the Washington Redskins Cheerleaders are most visible to Redskins fans during the games at FedExField, they also find themselves working weekends and holidays year-round to assist charity and volunteer organizations, fundraisers, and educational foundations. Each year, working with the Department of Defense and Armed Forces Entertainment, members of the Washington squad travel to military bases around the world. As a part of Operation Iraqi Freedom they have visited service men and women in Iraq and Italy. The cheerleaders have also traveled to New York for Fleet Week.

Over the last nine years performing for U.S. troops, the Washington Redskins Cheerleaders Variety Show has grown from a small holiday performance to a musical extravaganza that incorporates the latest in funk, rock-n-roll, swing, and jazz, as well as contemporary and country music, with some audience participation thrown in to ensure the show has something for everyone.

Most recently, the Redskins Cheerleaders traveled to India to help create the first-ever cheerleading squad in that country for the Royal Challengers Bangalore, part of the new Indian Premier League. Twelve cheerleaders and two choreographers arrived on April 13 and began performing for the cricket matches on April 18. They were originally scheduled to return to the United States at the end of April, but were so well received that their tour was extended until May 28. The Redskins Cheerleader's trip attracted national media attention as they conducted auditions, clinics and taught dance and choreography to Indian women. The squad's choreographers remained with the Royal Challengers until the end of the season in mid-June.

Washington Redskins Alumni

The Washington Redskins Alumni Association formed in 1958, the first such alumni group in the country, and celebrates its 50th anniversary in 2008. The organization spearheaded the alumni movement among former professional football players and was the model for other alumni groups that later formed in all NFL cities.

Today, Redskins alumni continue to make their presence known throughout the community. As a very active chapter of the NFL Alumni Association, their motto is "Caring for Kids". In addition to the numerous events and appearances Redskins alums participate in throughout the year, they hold two major fundraising events of their own: the Redskins Alumni Charity Golf Classic, now in its 29th year, and the annual Washington Redskins Welcome Home Luncheon, now in its 47th year. Mark Moseley currently resides as president of the Redskins Alumni Association.

The alumni have an office at Redskins Park and can be reached at 703-726-7488.

Washington Redskins

Marching Band

The Redskins Marching Band begins its 70th year leading sell-out crowds at FedExField in the team fight song, "Hail to the Redskins." With bandmaster Billy Ball directing, it is one of just two pro football marching bands still in existence today.

The all-volunteer ensemble formed in 1937, when George Preston Marshall brought the team to Washington, D.C., with the goal of entertaining fans from the moment they walked into the stadium until the time they left to go home.

For more than six decades, the Marching Band has taken great pleasure in entertaining fans with their pre-game and halftime shows.

Over the years, the Band has marched between train stations and stadiums before notable games, down Broadway before a New York Giants game in the early 1960s, and around the concourse of Tampa Stadium during Super Bowl XVIII.

HAIL TO THE REDSKINS

THE REDSKINS FIGHT SONG

*"Hail to the Redskins!
Hail Victory!*

*Braves on the warpath,
Fight for old D.C.!*

*Run or pass and score
we want a lot more!
Beat 'em Swamp 'em Touchdown
let the points soar!*

*Fight on, Fight on,
Til you have won,
Sons of Wash-ing-ton!"*

On August 17, 1938, "Hail to the Redskins" made its debut as the official fight song of the Washington Redskins. The song was written by renowned band leader Barnee Breeskin and the lyrics were penned by Hollywood movie star Corinne Griffith, the wife of team founder and owner, George Preston Marshall. Meet the Hogettes

Another trademark of FedExField game day is a sighting of "The Hogettes," a highly spirited group of Redskins fans that dress in polka dot skirts, brightly colored wigs, plastic hog snouts, and enjoy extra-large cigars.

"The Hogettes" started appearing at Redskins games in 1983, named after Washington's popular offensive line from the 80's, "The Hogs".

The group can be found at FedExField for every home Redskins game, and sometimes in the stands on road trips.

The members are extremely active in the community as well, making appearances at golf tournaments, telethons, and parades to support children's charities.

"The Hogettes" received the ultimate die-hard fan honor in 1999, with an induction into the Pro Football Hall of fame, in the Hall of Fans exhibit in Canton, Ohio.

The Gameday Experience

As Redskins fans enter through the gates of FedExField, they are about to be part of the largest and best game day experience in all of the NFL. As they get to their seats and prepare for the game, a production team is also preparing behind the scenes for that game.

The Redskins Production Department, directed by Anthony Fanticola and Scott Edwards as Executive Producers of Game Day Entertainment, lead a talented and experienced team that provide the video, audio and programming for all home games.

The Production Department's game day staff is comprised of fifty staff and technicians, who provide the fans all the Redskins coverage and entertainment features pre-, post- and during the game. All of this is seen on two endzone display boards that included two Sony Jumbotrons and two Daktronics displays, that combined measure over 26 feet x 157 feet per endzone display.

Mark Kessler, in his eighth season as gameday announcer at FedExField, provides the familiar voice in the stadium.

In addition to the display boards, the Production Department books all the National Anthem singers, Honor Guards, flyovers, and half time acts for the entire season.

They also coordinate all of the gameday performances of the Washington Redskins Marching Band and the first Ladies of football, the Washington Redskins Cheerleaders.

This holiday party for children actually began in 2000, but took on a new life in 2006 with the help of Redskins wide receiver Antwaan Randle El. Children are served a warm holiday meal and have the opportunity to visit with Santa Claus and Redskins players. Each child also receives a new winter coat.

The Redskins locker room at FedExField is transformed into Santa's Workshop as underserved children visit to select a new toy, provided by Toys for Tots, along with the help of Redskins players and their families.

REDSKINS SPORTING CLAY CHALLENGE

This one-of-a-kind clay pigeon shooting challenge features current and former Redskins players placed with teams of four competitors. The day concludes with a Maryland-style seafood dinner.

LICENSE PLATES

Did you know that you can show your Redskins pride and support the youth in our region just by purchasing a license plate? A percentage of every Redskins license plate purchased by Virginia motorists is donated to the Washington Redskins Charitable Foundation to benefit youth programs.

REDSKINS REPLAY

Each season, the Washington Redskins Charitable Foundation receives thousands of requests for tickets to Redskins games from children in need, military members, nonprofit organizations, people battling life-threatening illnesses, and families coping with traumas. Redskins Replay allows season ticket holders to make a tax-deductible donation of their tickets to the Washington Redskins Charitable Foundation to fulfill these requests.
